From the Executive Director...

Jim Thomas, Executive Director
jim.thomas@tennessee.edu

I KNOW I'M "PREACHIN' TO THE CHOIR" when I say how important the relationship is between city governments and the Tennessee General Assembly. The important work of the legislature frequently touches city government. Knowing about and understanding how the legislature's work affects city government is vitally important. Not knowing about it or understanding it can sometimes create problems for the city and its officials.

Jim Thomas

The Tennessee Municipal League (TML) does a great job keeping us all updated when the legislature is in session and we at MTAS work with TML throughout the year to help you, the city official, have a good understanding of adopted state legislation. A couple opportunities will occur over the next few months where you can hear this important information first-hand.

On June 21 – 24, TML's Annual Conference will take place in Chattanooga. All of the agenda items are directed at providing critical information to city officials and several of them address legislation impacting cities adopted in the recently-adjourned legislative session. You still have a few days remaining to register your attendance at the conference. Registration information can be had by visiting the TML website at www.tml1.org.

Later in the summer, MTAS will present its annual municipal legislative update in four locations across the state. We will be in Jackson on July 22, Nashville on July 23, Kingsport on July 29 and Knoxville on July 31. Registration for all of those sessions can be made through the MTAS website at <http://www.mtas.tennessee.edu/web2012.nsf/Web/Training+Course+Calendar>.

Schedules are busy but the time spent hearing about legislation that impacts your city will be well worth it. I look forward to joining you at any of the events mentioned above.

Best regards!

MTAS Offerings at the Upcoming Tennessee Municipal League Conference

REGISTER NOW
JUNE 21-24,
2014

THE ANNUAL TML CONFERENCE will be in Chattanooga this year, June 21–24, at the Marriott near the Chattanooga Conference Center, and MTAS will offer some exciting professional development opportunities for attendees.

As a pre-conference event, MTAS will be offering the Elected Officials Academy Level II program on Friday and Saturday June 20–21. For details on session topics and how to register for this pre-conference event, click here.

MTAS finance consultants will provide four workshop sessions during the TML conference that are eligible for CPE credits for CMFOs.

- Al Major, MTAS finance and accounting consultant, will present a session on the Water Quality Reporting – AWWA Format. This information-packed session will include a demonstration of how to use the AWWA spreadsheet required for water quality reporting. More importantly, attendees will learn about the possible financial impacts of trying to gain that extra point in a validity rating.

- Kay Stegall will present a session on ethics for CMFOs and talk about ethical standards that provide an excellent framework for CMFOs to adopt in their every day job duties.
- Brad Harris will present two sessions. His first session will be on how to best communicate financial information to your elected officials. He will share tips for communicating financial results to boards, councils, committees, and other non-financial stakeholders. Brad also will provide examples of communicating complex information in an easy-to-understand way. Brad's second session will be on internal controls for cash and will focus on basic cash controls that must be in place to protect public dollars.

Be sure to carefully review the TML conference agenda to determine the time and location of these classes so you do not miss a great opportunity to gain critical financial knowledge and CPEs at the same time.

What Is This Line Item Called Depreciation?

By Sharee Brewer
MTAS Finance and Accounting Consultant

DEPRECIATION IS THE PROCESS OF allocating the expense of capital assets over the period of time that matches the estimated useful life of that capital asset. Doing so allows an entity to recognize the expense in smaller portions over more than one fiscal year versus recognizing it only in the year that money was spent to purchase or build the asset. It is a process that is required by the Governmental Accounting Standards Board for funds known as enterprise funds. Enterprise funds are those that operate like a business, are to recover their costs from fees and charges and should remain self-supporting. Municipal utility funds are examples of enterprise funds.

Municipalities most often encounter problems understanding the importance of depreciation because it is often only dealt with during the budget phase of the fiscal year. The Comptroller's Office, Office of State and Local Finance, reviews enterprise budgets of Tennessee municipalities to determine that there are adequate revenues to support the overall annual utility expenses which are not limited to just cash expenses. The overall annual utility expenses include depreciation.

Because depreciation does not represent a cash expense, some mistakenly view it as a buffer to a utility's actual cash outflow and see it as cash savings that can be spent should a need materialize. However, depreciation isn't an expense item that should be minimized in this way simply because it doesn't result in cash outflow. Depreciation expense is an important component used in the annual evaluation of whether a utility is operating with a positive or negative change in overall net position. If the money budgeted for depreciation is allowed to be spent on other needs, this actually increases the likelihood that a utility will report a negative change in overall net position.

2013/2014 MTAS Salary Survey Results Available

Richard Stokes
MTAS Human Resource Consultant

TENNESSEE CITIES ENTERED their 2013/2014 salary data into the MTAS Salary Survey database. The survey results are now available. The data has been reviewed for consistency and is available to begin generating reports.

To generate a report, cities must use their survey password provided to them by MTAS to access the database. Once logged onto the site, there is an option to run reports. When the link is clicked, cities will have the ability to generate a copy of the total document including all salary data, all salaries by cities and the salary summary. Cities may also generate reports by specifying specific positions, position type, grand division, county, population group, population ranges, and by specific cities. Salary data also can be generated by annual budget, annual payroll, number of employees, salary ranges, merit increases and cost of living adjustments.

This year 116 cities responded to the survey yielding a response rate of 33 percent. This represented a slight decrease compared to last year when the response rate was about thirty-nine (39) percent. The highest response rate was for cities with populations between 15,000 and 100,000. The lowest response rates were among small cities with populations between 0 and 2,000.

The average salary range reported in this year's survey for all positions was a minimum and maximum range of $40,027.15 to $58,295.10. This represents a 2.27 percent change in reported salaries. The average actual salary for 2013/2014 was $44,240.93.

Thanks to everyone who took the time to enter data.

Summer Interns...

Q: IS IT LEGAL TO BRING ON UNPAID INTERNS THIS SUMMER?

A: Summertime typically brings interns. High school and college students looking for experience between college years at low to no wages. On the outside these arrangements seem simple and beneficial, but you need to be careful because the Department of Labor (DOL) can operate under a different premise regarding the employ of interns. In fact, according to the DOL, the intern is an employee and entitled to FLSA protections among other laws. There are other issues to contend with as well; health insurance, workers compensation, liabilities and training.

So, before you offer an unpaid or low wage (less than minimum wage) internship to any person you should visit the DOL's website and learn the criteria to determine if an internship may be properly classified as unpaid. <http://www.dol.gov/whd/>

Circuit Courts...

Q: WHAT CIRCUIT COURT DOES TENNESSEE FALL UNDER?

A: The Sixth

Q: WHAT OTHER STATES FALL UNDER OUR CIRCUIT COURT?

A: Kentucky, Michigan and Ohio

TREEDC Returns to Hiwassee College

By Warren Nevad
MTAS Municipal Management Consultant

 TREEDC Chairman/University of Tennessee President Emeritus Dr. Joe Johnson and (MTAS) Public Administration Intern Troy Williamson Johnson.

THE TENNESSEE RENEWABLE ENERGY AND ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT COUNCIL (TREEDC) held its first 2014 Community Energy forum at Hiwassee College in April. TREEDC 2014 founding members Hiwassee College and the University of Tennessee's Institute for Public Service sponsored this free community outreach forum for Hiwassee College students, staff and Monroe County area clean energy stakeholders. Presentations ranged from best campus practices of renewable energy and the state of Tennessee Energy initiatives. Hiwassee College Director of Alumni Affairs welcomed TREEDC and expressed his appreciation to the mayors for organizing the 3rd annual conference at Hiwassee College.

TREEDC Chairman/University of Tennessee President Emeritus Dr. Joe Johnson traced the origins of TREEDC as an organization that has grown initially from four Tennessee rural cities in 2008 to 96 cities in Tennessee and the Philippines in 2014 due to the support of the University of Tennessee Institute for Public Service. Dr. Johnson advised the audience that TREEDC is now providing educational forums to elementary schools across the state. He added that TREEDC recently organized with Tennessee Department of Labor and Workforce and the Tennessee Energy, Industry and Construction Consortium (TEICC) a statewide essay contest for middle school students to build awareness for careers in renewable energy. Dr. Johnson concluded his remarks by complimenting the TREEDC mayors with their innovative work in the Philippines by bringing in new partners to Tennessee renewable energy stakeholders.

The UT Municipal Technical Advisory Service (MTAS) Public Administration Intern Troy Williamson gave a thorough Powerpoint presentation about renewable energy activities across college campuses across the United States. He mentioned that the University of Tennessee recently purchased 1,760 CFLs (Compact Fluorescent Lamps) to exchange for bulbs from students' desk lamps, saving $4,190 and 60 tons of CO₂ in a single semester. According to Williamson, the University of South Carolina is starting a $19 million high-tech biomass energy plant, which will annually consume an estimated 57,000 tons of tree waste and save $2 million a year in energy costs. The University of Vermont has installed a small-scale 10 kilowatt wind turbine which is expected to generate 3,000-5,000 kilowatt hours of electricity per year.

MTAS Management Consultant Warren Nevad advised the audience that TREEDC will hold its inaugural Annual Conference at Tennessee Tech University on October 12 – October 14, 2014. Several Philippine members will be giving presentations. Please contact warren.nevad@tennessee.edu for conference information
